WEBINAR ON THE BUILD HEALTH CHALLENGE FROM THE DEBEAUMONT FOUNDATION:

THE BUILD HEALTH CHALLENGE® SUPPORTS INNOVATIVE PARTNERSHIPS THAT BRING TOGETHER PUBLIC HEALTH DEPARTMENTS, HOSPITALS AND HEALTH SYSTEMS, AND COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS TO DRIVE SUSTAINABLE IMPROVEMENTS IN COMMUNITY HEALTH

Systems change – it’s so easy to say, but so hard to achieve. While there is no single way to create sustainable change in health outcomes, there are frameworks and models that can be adapted to a community’s assets and context. Over the last five years, The BUILD Health Challenge has supported 55 coalitions across the country as they disrupt traditional power dynamics and foster sustainable improvements in health by transforming the drivers of health inequities. It aims to create a new norm in the United States – one that puts multi-sector, community-led partnerships at the foundation of improving health for everyone.

BUILD stands for Bold, Upstream, Integrated, Local, and Data-Driven – a model that can be (and has been) applied across sectors. A recent report shows that these efforts are working: in the second cohort alone, 18 communities achieved nearly 60 documented instances of systems change utilizing the BUILD model, including policy shifts, new funding streams, stronger community leadership, and improved health outcomes. This webinar will provide an introduction to the BUILD model, highlight partners putting the model in action, and share the learnings that BUILD has documented and analyzed over the past five years of working with community-led partnerships across the country.

Melissa Monbouquette, MPA
Deputy Director of the BUILD Health Challenge at the de Beaumont Foundation.

Melissa Monbouquette is the Deputy Director of the BUILD Health Challenge, a national, multi-funder initiative that promotes multi-sector, community-driven partnerships to reduce health disparities caused by inequity. She is dedicated to supporting healthy, resilient communities by serving as a thought leader and key resource for awardees and partners. She guides BUILD’s strategy and implementation, and leads the program’s dynamic innovation efforts to drive sustainable improvements in community health. Melissa has over a decade of experience in national non-profit strategy and operation, including roles at the National Children’s Museum, the Pew Research Center, and the Museo del Prado. She holds a bachelor’s degree from Tufts University and a master’s degree from The George Washington University Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration.

About the Bridging Collaborative

The Bridging Collaborative recognizes that the relationship between public health agencies, health care organizations (systems, hospitals, health systems, etc.) and the community is central to population health improvement efforts.

The purpose of the collaborative is to help strengthen the relationship between public health, health care and the community by supporting and disseminating cross-sectoral population health efforts.

The Collaborative is co-chaired by Terry Allan, Health Commissioner of the Cuyahoga County Board of Health (Ohio), and David Lakey, Chief Medical Officer and Associate Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs at the University of Texas System.
