When Ohio delayed their primary election last week, it understandably triggered fear that President Trump would use the global coronavirus pandemic to delay or cancel the November general election.

It may sound outrageous, but Trump has already exploited his emergency powers to raid hundreds of millions of dollars to build a wall along the southern border. Fortunately, my legal team beat President Trump’s Department of Justice in court, ensuring that he can’t steal funding from Washington state military projects to build his wall.

But with polls showing Trump behind in most battleground states, he may try to exploit this public health emergency to retain power.

If President Trump delays or cancels the November elections, I will consider an emergency lawsuit -- but it should not come to that.
If you believe it’s essential that Congress take immediate action to implement a national vote-by-mail system and safeguard the November election, I’m asking you to sign our petition and make your voice heard.

My office has led the fight on many of the highest profile lawsuits against Trump -- including the travel ban, protecting DREAMers, public charge, 3D-printed guns, and family separations -- because we anticipate his unlawful actions before they happen.

We’re preparing for an attack on our democracy. Please help us get the message to Congress that they need to prepare as well.
