Energy Transition project identification

OTRA (Island Development Agency)

During the one-month internship, the intern will help the project manager to contact the key stakeholders on the islands Cres and Lošinj and work with them on the identification of potential projects.

The project pipeline management encompasses the work needed to “select the right projects”. In other words, it involves steps to ensure that an adequate number of project proposals are generated, evaluated, and screened out at various stages of the intake process that meet strategic objectives. There are three major sub-components to pipeline management: ideation, work intake processes and phase-gate. Ideation is the process by which new project ideas are generated.

Depending on the period the intern will join our project team, he/she will work on the implementation of one or more phases of the project pipeline development.
