Over the course of the fellowship, four fellows and four individuals who represent leading international peacebuilding organizations come together as a cohort to advance applied research. This research focuses on building mutual learning and stronger partnerships between women peacebuilders and international organizations who are working to end cycles of violence.

Selected fellows will:

- Learn from and with other leading fellows and the Kroc School’s team
- Gain new skills, perspectives and innovative approaches to peacebuilding
- Expand their professional peacebuilding networks
- Drive forward vital peacebuilding research that focuses on shifting practice and policy
APPLICANTS FOR THE WOMEN PEACEMAKERS FELLOWSHIP MUST:

• Have worked for 10+ years as a peacebuilder, directly in their local peacebuilding contexts, and with at least one international peacebuilding organization on the year’s focus;
• Demonstrate peacebuilding/peacemaking skills and attitudes, local credibility, and a strong social network within her country/community of practice;
• Be in a position to participate in all activities during the 12-month fellowship and apply what is learned at the conclusion of the residency program;
• Speak sufficient English to relate personal experiences.

TO LEARN MORE, CONTACT US:

Kroc Institute for Peace and Justice
Phone: (619) 260-7873
ipj@sandiego.edu

Jennifer Bradshaw
Program Officer, Women, Peace & Security Programs
jenniferbradshaw@sandiego.edu